THAILAND UNREST MESSAGE FROM FRED LIGON

Mae Sot, Tak Province Thailand, fligon@ksc.th.com

There has been a lot going on in Bangkok over the last several years, argely in response to the coup which deposed Prime Minister (PM)Thaksin (now in self-imposed exile in Dubai avoiding a 2-year jail sentence) and those advocating for him to return to Thailand, and those who are fighting against the "Thaksin regime" and perceived corruption of his family and cronies.

The foreign press (CNN and BBCamong others) try to portray what is happening in Thailand as a class war but it is much more complicated than that.

As for safety issues, there are several major intersections where the protesters have been camped for the last months. As long as you stay away from those sites you are in little danger. Some of those sites have now closed and, as of today, two more of those sites are due to be closed down and consolidated into the main site at Lumpini Park. That doesn't necessarily reduce the chance of violence, however.

The current PM (Thaksin's sister and largely regarded as his puppet) and the head of the protesters are basically in a stand-off. Unless they stand down and agree to negotiate an end to all of this, it is likely to drag on for some time.

Four children were killed in Bangkok last weekend which did give most people pause so there is hope that a stand down might be possible.

In addition, 24 people have died over the past couple of months with almost 700 wounded -- those lives most certainly need to be acknowledged. The point is that the violence is localized in certain areas of the city which are easy enough to avoid when you are aware.

People do grieve for those who have died in the protests, particularly the children, and no one takes what has been happening lightly but it is possible to avoid the areas of town that are most contentious.

Half of each month, I am usually at the Thailand-Burma border which is far removed from the politics playing out in Bangkok. The other half of the time I am in Bangkok but I am far away from where the violence is playing out.

For anyone who has thought about visiting Thailand but has also had second thoughts because of the anti-government protests, I would say that Thailand is largely peaceful and a wonderful place to visit and live. I've been in Thailand since 1982 and feel quite at home and comfortable here.

All the best, Fred

P.S. I am considering attending the reunion. I am just trying to see how the remainder of this year is going to play out re work, consultant possibilities, etc. We'll see. I expect that by May or June I will be sure about my plans. And I did receive the magnet a couple of weeks ago.

Great job on newsletter. I will try to schedule my annual Cal. trip for early October.

As far as Maida's. I had to laugh. Certainly brought back old memories.

Market Street- 1969

For my 21st birthday some of the people I worked with (Salinas Camera Shop) took me there to dance. What a meat market it was. Wasn't as sleezey as I had imagined, but it certainly wasn't the Quail Lodge (where I had my 21st bday dinner). Talk about two ends of the social scale!

Things here are fine...just waiting for winter to come to an end. I've never experienced snow in March before....we had 5 inches on Sunday over 1/2 inch of icy sleet. I'm planning my escape tomorrow! PJ

It seems we stood and talked like this before

Gimme an "I"....Gimme a "D".....Gimme more "XYZ's"

*For you statistical wonks, here is an unsolicited analysis
Of the list of attendees so far*

"Class members who have signed up early are alphabetically out of balance. The alphabet divides at M: A-M 33 class members | N-Z 43 class members (a statistically significant difference).so far 76 classmates PLUS their guests.

Although 76 is a great number for both Declarations of Independence and Trombones (but not basketball teams), it's sad to see 3 of the first 5 letters empty! (Even Z has someone signed up!) Furthermore, the fact that the table auto-divides the class at J-K means that the columns are actually 19 and 57. Even Claire James wants to switch columns to join the majority.

Historically, individuals with last names lower in the alphabet tend to be more confident, sign-up earlier, etc., unlike Winnett and Ziganay."

We looked at each other in the same way then.

As promised

Here's the E-Ticket Ride driving directions to the Salinas Airport Landing Zone Restaurant on October 5 for breakfastwith every table having a view of Mt. Toro and the tarmac.

From Main Street, go east on Alisal Street, toward Alisal. You'll pass the Alisal Theatre, but it's not there anymore. Use your imagination.

At the intersection of Sanborn Road and East Alisal Street, remember our first McDonald's with the golden arches located on the southwest corner.....

Keep driving, and look for El Sausal Junior High School up on your left within walking distance of where Monte Mart was on the southeast corner of Sanborn and Alisal. GONE

The school still looks like it did in this picture from the 50's (Larry Mathisen donning the latest western wear and interfering with school view)

You are so close now....just past John Street in about 1/2 mile, you'll turn right onto Skyview Blvd. You'll remember this , because after you turn and on your right is

The Gene Robertson Little League Baseball Park

Now, look straight ahead..... The road deadends about point 2 mi. ahead at the Salinas airport.

There's plenty of parking space in the lot to your left. Come in the airport terminal.
The Landing Zone Restaurant is inside on your left.

Find your classmate BFFs and hear stories about the drag racing days on the airport runway.

How how early is that??

In the next newsletter, we'll let you in on the best parking for the Fox Theater

but I can't remember where or when.

I got the magnet and love it. Believe it or not I collect kitchen magnets. My fridge is covered. Still planning on making it for the 50th. (Can't believe it's been that long) Hubby is working again out of Paso Robles but hopefully he will be able to retire next year. We plan on taking a cruise to The Holy Land. Retirement for him just can't get here soon enough. Love the NSHS newsletters, and I am so glad you found me. Have you had any luck finding Claudine Smith? I would love to see her again.

Ken McDaris,(DOB 2/26) Salinas,

Not planning anything until the 10th of March. My oldest son and I are planning a trip to Clear Lake for some spring time fishing.

Meredith Crews, (DOB 3/1)Salinas, harleymama93901@sbcglobal.net - My birthday lunch was a BLAST...so blessed with so many Friends. Makes you realize what is important in Life.So much!!! I had 16 of my friends meet me at Elli's down on So. Main Street I am so Blessed to feel so good. So 68 doesn't bother me and I'm grateful for that for sure.

Joyce Plaskett, (DOB 3/19), Woodland , jeplaskett@aol.com

Let's see now. My 68th birthday was a little different than usual. First, my brother called the day before saying he didn't want me to be disappointed because I wouldn't be getting a card in the mail from him the next day." And....he said he'd probably forget to call the next day too. So my question to him was "How did you remember to call today then?" I also reminded him that I haven't sent him a card in years.....

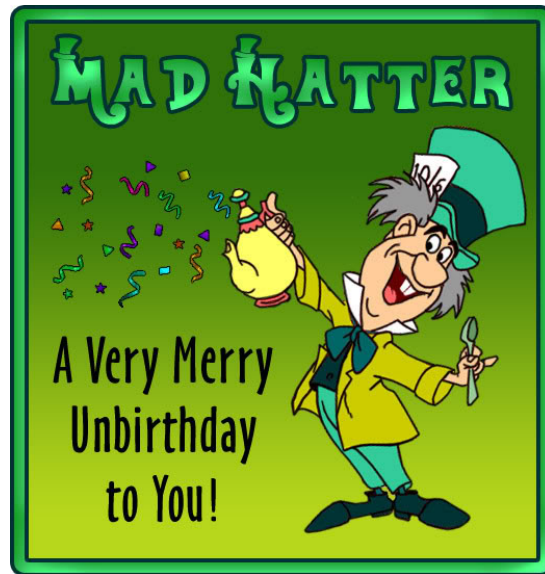

I remember those days when my ear would be sore by the end of the day because of all the phone calls I received. My son was the ONLY one who called me (besides my sister, Faye). Now, don't get me wrong, because I'm just as guilty as anyone else. Either we text, email, or use Facebook to extend birthday wishes. I received one text, one email (you) and dozens of FB wishes. Did I sit down with a handful of "paper" thank you notes and stamps to acknowledge them all. Heck no! I did what everyone else does: posted one thank you note on Facebook thanking everyone!

Jack gave me a Macy's gift card and a Starbucks gift card. Told him earlier that I didn't NEED anything, so he listened to me!!! Good for you Jack-Jack. I will be using that Macy's card to buy some cute summer clothes for our trip to Puerto Vallarta the first week of June.

Went to lunch at the hotdog place (can't spell it!); and went to Taco Bell for dinner (both times at my request!). My sister, her husband, and her BFF went with us. After dinner, I opened some lovely presents from Sissy and BFF; they sang HB to me and we had Angel Food cake with strawberries and whipped cream for dessert.

That's about it! Came home, watched TV a bit, and went to bed!!!

Now, the question is: Is this a true story or did I make it up? I certainly don't think anyone would be jealous of this!

Gail Kitaji didn't have a birthday, but her mom had a big one in November, 2013.

Salinas, kitajig@aol.com

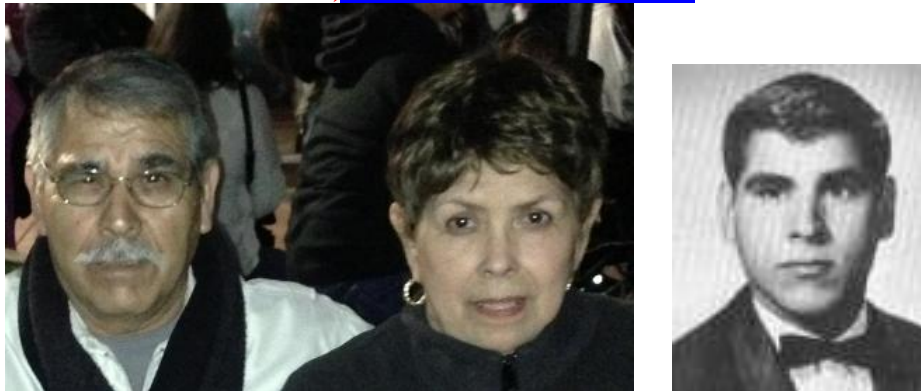

"Mom is doing pretty well, all things considered. She continues to "slow down." I try to keep her moving as much as possible however when we are in Salinas, she tends to want to just stay in bed and sleep, so I've been taking more frequent auto trips, mainly around California and Nevada--more interesting for her than being at home. Her health is still pretty good considering her age. She turned 100 last November."

Happy Birthday, Mom

"As we got further and further away, it (the Earth) diminished in size. Finally it shrank to the size of a marble, the most beautiful you can imagine. That beautiful, warm, living object looked so fragile, so delicate, that if you touched it with a finger, it would crumble and fall apart. Seeing this has to change a man." James B. The aggregate of our joy and suffering, thousands of confident religions, ideologies and economic doctrines, every hunter and forager, every hero and coward, every creator and destroyer of civilization, every king and peasant, every young couple in love, every mother and father, hopeful child, inventor and explorer, every teacher of morals, every corrupt politician, every "superstar," every "supreme leader," every saint and sinner in the history of our species lived there....on a mote of dust suspended in a sunbeam."
